

Facebook is teaming up with save.org, suicide awareness program) to study suicide victims' activity on the social network before their death. they hope the research will raise awareness to the warning signs. Prevention through education!